Kidnapping for ransom on the rise, says NP chief

• Abdul Malik Baloch notes deteriorating law and order situation is causing fear among the public and business community • Recalls two prominent businessmen abducted recently

By Behram Baloch

GWADAR: National Party President Dr Abdul Malik Baloch has expressed serious concern over the increasing incidents of kidnapping for ransom in Kech district, warning that the deteriorating law and order situation is creating severe insecurity among the public and business community and adversely affecting economic activity.

Speaking at a press conference, organised by All Parties Kech (APK) at the Turbat Press Club on Friday, he urged the relevant authorities to take immediate notice of the situation and adopt effective measures, warning that failure to act could further worsen conditions.

During the briefing, it was stated that two well-known and peaceful businessmen from Kech — Haseeb Yasin, son of Haji Yasin, and Shah Nawaz Gul Jan, son of Haji Gul Jan Rind — had been abducted for ransom, causing widespread concern across the district.

Dr Baloch said that over the past month, continuous contacts had been made with all relevant authorities, including the chief minister of Balochistan and the Inspector General of Police, but no satisfactory response or practical progress had been witnessed so far. He added that the issue was now being highlighted through the media due to lack of action.

He said that crimes such as kidnapping for ransom were paralysing business activities and instilling fear among investors, stressing that it was the government's responsibility to ensure the safety of the business community and provide an environment where economic activities could be carried out without fear.

Addressing the presser, APK Convener Nawab Khan Shambizai warned that if the two abducted individuals were not recovered at the earliest, his party, lawyers' organisations, traders' bodies, doctors' associations and other groups would stage a protest rally in Kech on January 5, followed by a complete district-wide strike on January 7.

The participants of the presser unanimously demanded that the government take immediate notice of the rising incidents of kidnapping for ransom, ensure the safe recovery of both abducted businessmen, and adopt concrete measures to improve the overall law and order situation in Kech district.

Representatives of various political and social organisations also attended the press conference, includingBalochistan Bar Council Vice Chairman Advocate Jadin Dashti, Jamiat Ulema-i-Islam leader and former senator Ismail Baloch, Vice Chairman District Kech Mir Bahar Jameel Dashti, National Party Kech President Younis Javed, BSO Pajjar Chairman Boheer Saleh, PMA District President Dr Abdul Ghani Baloch,Kech Bar Association President Advocate Majid Shah, BNP Awami central leader Zareef Zadak Baloch, Anjuman-i-Tajran Kech President Nisar Ahmed Jouski and others.

the National Assembly chamber if they did not wish to come to his office.

Asked about his earlier remarks, Mr Sanaullah said the prime minister would have taken PML-N supremo Nawaz Sharif, President Asif Ali Zardari and the establishment into confidence before extending any offer of talks to the opposition.

He said that efforts by Tehreek Tahaffuz Ayeen-i-Pakistan (TTAP) and the PTI's second- and third-tier leadership to initiate negotiations could not move forward unless Imran Khan changes his policy in favour of dialogue.

The adviser claimed the PTI founder had not authorised anyone to negotiate, saying his message, conveyed by his sister Aleema Khan, was that "anyone who talks about negotiations is not among us".

Imran Khan "sent a message of street agitation and a wheel-jam strike, and also asked (Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Chief Minister) Sohail Afridi to visit Punjab, Balochistan and Sindh for mobilisation", Mr Sanaullah said, reiterating that Mr Khan was the sole "hindrance" in negotiations.

Meanwhile, Punjab Governor Sardar Saleem Haider on Friday said political stability could not be achieved through confrontation, stressing that President Zardari was the only political figure who could create such an environment.

Mr Haider said that PTI founding chairman Imran Khan could not be released through street pressure or political confrontation. "The only viable path forward for the country is dialogue," Mr Haider said while speaking to the media at a ceremony marking the birth anniversary of Hazrat Ali (RA).

Earlier in December, Prime Minister Shehbaz reiterated his offer of talks with the opposition, while stressing that negotiations could proceed only on "legitimate matters".

At a recent national conference organised by the TTAP alliance, participants agreed that the door for dialogue should never be closed in a democracy. The same day, political leaders from across the spectrum, including from the PML-N, called for restraint and engagement, warning that political confrontation was fuelling instability and violence.

had nearly 600MHz despite a smaller population.

"Our goal is not just faster internet, but future-ready connectivity," Ms Khawaja said, adding that the government was working with the Pakistan Telecommunication Authority (PTA) and international consultants to ensure the process complies with global best practices.

She said connectivity was no longer a luxury but a critical infrastructure for economic growth, national security, education, healthcare, agriculture and exports, noting that Pakistan was the world's fourth-largest freelancing economy and that the IT industry was growing at an annual rate of around 20 to 21 per cent.

The minister said Pakistan had also joined the world's longest submarine cable system, SMW-6, and that two more undersea internet cables were expected to become operational this year.

"These developments will reduce reliance on limited international routes and help minimise disruptions caused by global cable cuts," she added.

Ms Khawaja also pointed to the cabinet's approval of a Mobile Virtual Network Operator (MVNO) policy, under which MVNOs would purchase network capacity in bulk from existing operators and offer services under their own brands. She said the policy would encourage greater competition, improve affordability and attract investment in the telecom sector.

In addition, she said the PTA had approved district-level internet service provider (ISP) licences, enabling local cable operators and small companies to legally provide services in villages, small towns and underserved areas. The move, she added, would help expand fibre connectivity beyond major commercial centres.

Responding to a question about service suspensions, the minister said shutdowns of mobile or internet services were imposed strictly on security directives issued by the interior ministry and were not a policy decision of the IT ministry. "Human lives are more important than connectivity," she said, adding that such measures were taken only in extreme situations.

Pink Bus service for women launched in Quetta

By Muhammad Akbar Notezai

QUETTA: With the start of the new year, the Balochistan government has formally launched the Pink Bus service for women and female students in the provincial capital.

In a message posted on social media platform X on Friday, Chief Minister Mir Sarfraz Bugti said the initiative aims to make daily commuting safer, more dignified and easier for women in Balochistan.

He described the Pink Bus service as an important social reform measure that will help women and students access education, employment and healthcare facilities with greater ease.

CM Bugti said a safe transportation system for women is a key and fundamental component of the provincial government's reform agenda. He emphasised that the government's top priority is to ensure the continuity of the Pink Bus service on a permanent basis.

He further said that in the next phase, the service would be expanded to other districts of the province so that more women could benefit from the facility.

The chief minister added that the provincial government is taking practical and effective steps to empower women, and that the Pink Bus Service is part of these efforts aimed at promoting women's safety, independence and social inclusion.

In case they fail to pay the fine for any of the offences they have been found guilty of committing, the period of their imprisonment will be extended by six months, according to the court orders.

The court granted the convicts the benefit of Section 382-B (period of detention to be considered while awarding sentence of imprisonment) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and that all sentences handed out to them were to run concurrently.

"The convict is informed that he has the right to file/prefer an appeal in the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court, Islamabad within seven days," each of the orders read.

The court also authorised and instructed the relevant station house officers to arrest the convicts "upon his availability and to forward him to jail for the commitment of his sentence".

Trial proceedings

During the trial, the prosecution presented 24 witnesses. Public Prosecutor Raja Naveed Hussain Kayani represented the state, while Advocate Gulfam Ashraf Goraiya appeared on behalf of the accused.

Records show that Advocate Goraiya was appointed as the defence counsel by the court.

A detailed written judgement, which is yet to be issued by the court, is expected to outline the evidentiary basis and legal reasoning underpinning the multiple convictions and sentences.

The cases against the seven convicted individuals were registered in 2023.

The case against Sabir Shakir, Moeed Pirzada and Akbar Hussain was registered by Islamabad police on charges of sedition and terrorism for their alleged involvement in the violence and vandalism amid protests that erupted in the wake of PTI founder's arrest.

Similarly, Shaheen Sehbai, Wajahat Saeed Khan, Adil Raja and Haider Raza Mehdi were booked for "abetting mutiny" and inciting people to attack military installations across the country on May 9, 2023.

Response

Although they are usually quite active on social media, the X accounts of Wajahat S. Khan, Shaheen Sehbai, Moeed Pirzada and Akbar Hussain were silent over the development until going to press.

However, in separate tweets, Sabir Shakir, Adil Raja and Haider Mehdi reacted to the sentencing.

"Speaking truth to power is now called Digital Terrorism in Pakistan," wrote Raja, while Shakir vowed to continue raising his voice "for the Constitution, law, democracy, independent judiciary, free media, free parliament, and fundamental rights".
